September 2014 - For the 36th consecutive year, the US guide Andrew Harper's Hideaway Report has surveyed its readers composed of Presidents, CEO, owners and partners to determine the world's best hotels and resorts. Completely independent, the guide has based its reputation on its integrity by having mystery guests.

Every year, it establishes a rating based on votes of its members, seasonal travelers, consisting mainly of entrepreneurs, investors, and executives.

Four Seasons Hotel George V was voted best city hotel in continental Europe in the prestigious guide's edition of 2014.

This distinction brings an additional award to the George's V honors list as the palace was voted best hotel in Europe by the Telegraph magazine and best hotel in the world for its service by the Condé Nast Traveller magazine.
